Presenter Biographies

David Wilkinson, Postgraduate Dean, Health Education England

David was appointed Postgraduate Dean in 2012. His interests include the use of technology to support learning, whole workforce solutions to healthcare problems and ways to improve the NHS as a learning environment.

In May 2015 he was appointed Deputy Chair of English Deans; to support the activities of Deans in England and leads on a number of national workstreams aimed at enhancing training and supporting learners.

He continues to practise as a Consultant Vascular Surgeon with an interest in critical limb ischaemia and vascular access surgery.

In March 2017 Mr Wilkinson was awarded an MBE for services to the NHS.

Mark Britnell, Chairman and Partner, KPMG UK

Mark is Chairman and Partner of the Global Health Practice at KPMG. Since 2009, he has worked in 60 countries, helping governments, public and private sector organisations with operations, strategy and policy. He has a pioneering and inspiring global vision for healthcare in both the developed and developing world and has written extensively on what works around the world (kpmg.com/whatworks).

As Chairman for the Global Healthcare Practice, Mark has responsibility for KPMG's 4,000 health staff across more than 40 countries. Mark has dedicated his professional life to healthcare and has led organisations at local, regional, national and global levels. He was CEO of high-performing University Hospitals in Birmingham and master-minded the largest new hospital build in the NHS. He also ran the NHS from Oxford to the Isle of Wight before joining the NHS Management Board as a Director-General. This frontline experience grounds his approach to empowering, motivating and inspiring healthcare innovation

Sam Roberts, Future Leader, Health Education England

Sam is an HEE Leadership Fellow with Health Education England. He is currently developing the Physician Associate role in the Yorkshire and the Humber region aiming to maximise the skills of this professional group in contributing to a sustainable future workforce.

Sam is leading a research project exploring how Physician Associates integrate into healthcare teams, identifying the barriers and the enablers to integration into the workforce.

He is currently supporting providers in the development of several Physician Associate preceptorship schemes across Yorkshire and the Humber. Sam is based at the University of Leeds where he is a visiting lecturer teaching both MBChB and PG Dip PA students.

Sam is an ST7 trainee in Respiratory and General Internal Medicine with an interest in asthma and lung cancer.

Laura Fileccia, Future Leader, Health Education England

Laura is an HEE Leadership Fellow working with the Advanced Clinical Practitioner workforce at Leeds NHS Teaching Hospital.

She is currently leading a collaborative project to develop a core competency ACP framework within the Trust to increase access to training and development to support this highly skilled and growing workforce.

Laura is also involved in the Improving Working Life group, helping to increase junior doctor morale.

Outside of her Fellowship year, Laura has been qualified as a therapy radiographer for 17 years. She is an Advanced Practitioner Therapy Radiographer at Leeds Cancer Centre and has implemented various technical advances in breast radiotherapy, improving the patient pathway and experience. Laura is passionate about promoting inclusive leadership and providing excellent patient care.

Jon Hossain, Deputy Postgraduate Dean, Health Education England

Jon has been a Consultant Vascular Surgeon at Mid Yorkshire Hospitals NHS Trust since 2001. Jon trained in London and before taking up his Consultant post was a Senior Clinical Fellow at St Marys' Hospital Imperial.

Jon is proficient in modern surgical techniques, especially in the non-invasive treatment of varicose veins. He is a trainer in technique and has a significant interest in medical education and training.

Jon is the lead for the Yorkshire and the Humber Future Leaders Programme, which offers opportunities for trainees to undertake a one year "out of programme" Clinical Leadership Fellowship in order to develop their personal leadership skills.

Jon was appointed as Deputy Postgraduate Dean in 2013 and is also a member of the Court of Examiners for the Royal College of Surgeons of England.

Susy Stirling, Associate Dean and Training Programme Director for Public Health, Health Education England

Susy is a Training Programme Director for Public Health and has worked in a variety of health systems in the NHS and overseas. She has worked for and with acute trusts, health authorities, primary care groups, primary care trusts, a strategic health authority, clinical commissioning groups, Public Health England, NHS England and Health Education England.

Susy became interested in organisational development after observing the impact of successive NHS reorganisations, on staff as well as patients. In her Associate Dean role she runs the Leadership Fellowship Scheme. She is a trained coach, 360° facilitator and Action Learning Set facilitator and set up the Coaching Scheme within Health Education England. She is also trained in Thinking Time Coaching, Myers Briggs Type Indicator, Strength Deployment Inventory and Neuro-Linguistic Programming.

He worked as College Tutor for two years and as Clinical Tutor for 10 years until 2002, being responsible for leading the development of SHO RITA's.

Peter was awarded a Master's in medical education in January 2000. He was appointed as Associate Postgraduate Dean in 2002 with responsibility for implementing Foundation Training in South Yorkshire and subsequently Postgraduate Schools' Development. Peter has been a Deputy Postgraduate Dean since April 2008.

Kevin Moore, Head of Workforce Transformation, Health Education England

Kevin's professional background is clinical radiography and he held both clinical and teaching roles before moving into NHS management in 1990 when he joined Yorkshire Regional Health Authority. Since then, he has worked in various education, service commissioning senior roles and service contracting in Education Consortium, NHS Trusts and Health Authorities.

Kevin took a career break from the NHS in 2002 and worked in Management Consultancy for 8 years returning to the NHS in 2010. During this period of work he also established an injury prevention charity called SMARTRISK which worked with teenagers to help them manage everyday risks, thereby avoiding serious injury.

Kevin is currently Head of Workforce Transformation for HEE North and leads the Workforce Transformation team. His team work with each of the seven Local Workforce Action Boards (LWABs) in the North and the associated STP/ACS teams on their emerging workforce strategies.

Anthony Howard, NIHR Clinical Lecturer in Trauma and Orthopaedic Surgery

Anthony is a National Institute of Health Research Clinical Lecturer in Trauma and Orthopaedics. Anthony came into medicine later in life, graduating from Manchester University in 2010. Since starting as a junior doctor, he has occupied NIHR academic roles in addition to his clinical responsibilities.

Prior to medicine, Anthony was and continues to occasionally practice as a Barrister, with his chambers in Manchester. As a Barrister, he specialises in personal injury, clinical negligence and regulatory work for the General Medical Council. Anthony has also sat as an Assistant Deputy Coroner in Preston and Lancashire region.

Anthony's research interests are varied, his PhD was based on neural activation in Shoulder Instability patients, and he has continued to expand this type of research. Anthony is involved in clinical trials at both regional and national level.

As an antidote to work, Anthony entered his first marathon in 2014, and now has completed a number of races, including New York, London and Boston.
